DAUGHERTY AT WHITE HOUSE

Prosecution of All Guilty Persons and Return to the Navy of the Teapot Dome Oil Reserve Decided Upon by President Coolidge—Senate Committee Orders Sinclair's Immediate Return From Europe.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Prosecution of all guilty persons and return to the navy of Teapot Dome oil reserve was decided upon by President Coolidge.

This was disclosed by Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty after a long conference at the white house with the president. The attorney general also revealed for the first time that department of justice agents have been investigating every phase of the lease for the last three weeks and had started their inquiry long before the senate committee got under way.

By direction of the president, Attorney General Daugherty has assigned Assistant Attorney General Holland to the case. Holland is sitting in the committee sessions as an official observer to see what will be disclosed that will give the department ground on which to take action.

Officials of the navy department asserted that at the time of the transfer of naval oil reserves from the navy to the interior department was made in 1921, neither Secretary Denby nor his associates knew that Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall intended to lease them to private interests. Had this been known, it was stated, the navy department would have opposed the transfer. It was also stated that the idea of making the transfer originated with Secretary Denby and not with Fall, it having been Denby's opinion that such transfer would be beneficial to the navy. The navy had no logical bureau equipped to look after the properties.

The senate committee's investigation came to a temporary standstill until Friday to await the appearance of former Secretary Fall and J. C. Zevely, Sinclair's Washington representative. Subpoenas were issued and turned over to Sergeant-at-Arms Barry, of the senate for service. Service was made by wire to New Orleans, where the two have been the past few days.

The committee also ordered Sinclair's immediate return from Europe, whence he sailed last Wednesday from New York. E. E. Stanford, Sinclair's personal attorney, offered to cable Sinclair and promised to have him before the committee within a fortnight.

Several Democratic congressmen said Attorney General Daugherty is not the man to conduct such an investigation, having compromised himself by approving the Teapot Dome lease in the first place.

Senator Caraway announced the pledge of Republican support for his resolutions rescinding the leases of naval oil lands in Teapot Dome and California, on the ground that they were "fraudulently made."

FALL ENTERS DENIAL

Says Harry Sinclair Never Loaned or Gave Him a Penny.

New Orleans, Jan. 23.—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who is under fire of the Teapot Dome investigating committee, left here for Washington, to appear before the committee and tell what he knows of the lease closed with Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil king, now in England.

Archie Roosevelt, in testimony before the senate committee, says that he was told the foreman on Fall's ranch had received $68,000 in checks from the Sinclair interests. Senator Fall brands this as a falsehood. "Mr. Wahlberg's recollection of the conversation between him and Mr. Roosevelt must be incorrect," said Fall. "Harry F. Sinclair has never loaned me or given me a penny."

Crabbe Against Probe.
Columbus, Jan. 23.—A special grand jury investigation of law enforcement conditions in Steubenville and Jefferson county would be "a waste of money and would accomplish nothing," Attorney General Crabbe reported to Governor Donahay. Crabbe wrote the governor to report on a special investigation made by S. S. Deaton of Urbana, special counsel for the attorney general's department.

SELECTING CABINET

Premier MacDonald Announces Number of Appointments.

London, Jan. 23.—Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader in parliament, accepted appointment to the premiership. The house of commons met to take official cognizance of the change in ministries and then adjourned until Feb. 12 to enable MacDonald to complete his cabinet and draft a legislative program.

The new premier told friends that he expected that all appointments to the cabinet would be made Thursday.

The following appointments to places in the new cabinet have already been announced, in addition to the premiership and foreign ministry to be held by MacDonald: Chancellor of the exchequer, Philip Snowden; lord chancellor, Viscount Haldane; home secretary, Arthur Henderson; colonial secretary, J. H. Thomas; secretary of state for war, Stephen Walsh; minister of labor, Tom Shaw.

MEXICO PURCHASES FOUR WARSHIPS

Naval Engagement in the Gulf a Possibility.

Mexico City, Jan. 23.—Four former American destroyers that saw service in European waters during the world war will sail from Philadelphia shortly flying the Mexican flag. If they can tempt the rebel gunboats into action there will be a naval combat off Tampico or Vera Cruz.

These destroyers were bought by the Obregon government from Perry Hinton. It is understood he bought them from the navy department prior to the disarmament conference. The Mexican government is also negotiating for four other destroyers now in Florida waters. The war office says rebels will end their occupation of ports as soon as the ships arrive in Mexican waters.

Federal forces closed in on the rebel base at Esperanza, in the state of Puebla. This is a small town located half way between Vera Cruz and Mexico City.

Minister Serrano, in command of the federal army, has advised the war office he is aiming to force the rebels under General Sanchez into a general engagement.

The federal army operating in that sector totals more than 12,000 men. The strength of the Sanchezistas is estimated at about 8,000. These are the rebels that initiated the revolution at Vera Cruz about six weeks ago.

President Obregon was at Iraguato directing the chase of Estrada's scattered rebel army. He returned to federal headquarters when he found the rebel army was unwilling to fight it out.

Three of Tacoma's Men Perish.
Washington, Jan. 23.—Captain Herbert G. Sparrow and two radio operators of the cruiser Tacoma lost their lives in the storm which has been sweeping Mexican ports, the navy department announced.

Miner Injured.
New Lexington, O., Jan. 23.—Ellwood Shilling, miner, was injured probably fatally when caught beneath a fall of slate at the Sunday Creek Coal company mine at Drakes.

KAMENEV MAY SUCCEED LENIN

Trotsky Not Likely to Inherit Dead Leader's Mantle.

SOVIET CAPITAL IN MOURNING

Body of Lenin Taken to the Kremlin in Moscow, Where It Is on Public View—Funeral of Dead Soviet Premier to Be Held Saturday—Autopsy Performed on Body Reveals Cause of Death.

Moscow, Jan. 23.—A radical change in the composition of the blood vessels of the brain, with a fresh blood effusion to the brain centers, was the immediate cause of the death of Nikolai Lenin, president of the council of people's commissars and actual ruler of Russia.

A bulletin following an autopsy on Lenin's body by 10 physicians gives the above as their official conclusion.

All theaters and other places of amusement in Moscow were closed with the announcement of Lenin's death. All activities that can possibly be dispensed with will be suspended until after the funeral Saturday.

Lenin died at the village of Gorky, which is 20 miles from Moscow. The body was brought to the Kremlin today and will be on public view until 7 o'clock in the evening at Whitehall, the trade union headquarters, the former Nobility hall.

The soviet congress adjourned in the midst of what was probably the most unusual scene ever enacted in Moscow. Bands marched sadly, almost aimlessly through the streets, playing funeral dirges, every now and then striking up the revolutionary funeral march. On all sides were thousands of men, women and children weeping, sobbing and crying aloud in the strange laments of the Russian language.

The soviet government will carry on the work that Lenin began, with the peasants and workers co-operating," declared an official statement.

It is possible that Leo Kamenev, third vice president of the Russian federation of soviet republics, will be appointed as Lenin's successor. Leon Trotsky, long partner of the dead leader in the early bolshevik days, is not likely to inherit the Lenin mantle. Lenin, who was 53 years of age, was a lawyer, pamphleteer, and finally dictator of all Russia. He was the organizer and chief exponent of the movement which became known as Bolshevism, and which he characterized as "the great experiment: the dictatorship of the proletariat." He was a revolutionist at school, at the academy, at his university, and ever afterward.

Lenin's real name was Vladimir Ilitch Ulanoff. He was born April 24, 1870, in the town of Simbirsk, of a bourgeois family.

Lenin's activities began in the early '90's, following the execution of his eldest brother, Alexander Ulanoff, for an attempt on the life of Czar Alexander III. He entered the University of Kazan, from which he was expelled one month later for participating in a students' revolutionary movement. He was arrested and served a long term of imprisonment and then was deported to Siberia, where he devoted his time to exposition of the Marxian theory. It was at this time that he adopted the pen name Nikolai Lenin. In 1901 he finished his term of deportation and emigrated to Switzerland, where he published a paper called "The Spark." When the czar was overthrown, early in 1917, Lenin, with a group of his supporters, returned to Russia.

MISS NORMAND QUIZZED

Court Suspects Conspiracy to Suppress Evidence.

Los Angeles, Jan. 23.—Judge J. Walker Hanby made a statement from the bench that there "appears to be a conspiracy" to suppress evidence in the hearing of Horace A. Greer, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, an actress, charged with shooting Courtland S. Dines. Judge Hanby said: "I am not at all satisfied with the testimony that has been given in this case. There appears to be a conspiracy on the part of the witnesses who have already testified to keep from the court many things that the court should know about this case."

Miss Normand testified that she did not recognize the pistol used by Greer in the shooting, although she admitted she owned one similar to it. She also said she was in the bedroom of the Dines apartment with Edna Purviance when the shooting occurred.

MAIL EMBARGO ANNOUNCED

Communication With Mexican Oil Fields Cut Off.

SECRETARY HUGHES' ACTION

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Approves Two Claims Conventions on Which Recognition to the Obregon Government Was Granted Recently—Foreign Mail Also Hit by Secretary Hughes' Order.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The state department has clamped an embargo on mail to Vera Cruz and other sections of Mexico held by the rebels.

This final action completely severs communication between any one of the oil regions and the United States, and between Americans and their interests or relatives in rebel territory. It also ends foreign mail, which usually passes through the United States and the port of New Orleans.

The senate foreign relations committee approved and sent to the senate the two claims conventions on which recognition to the Obregon government recently was granted. Ratification by the senate was urged. This leaves only one step, the appointment of an ambassador, to completely restore normal and cordial relations between this government and the Mexican republic.

While the senate committee had the conventions under consideration, word came to the navy department that the cruiser Omaha, six destroyers and the supply ship Prometheus, which were dispatched from Panama to Vera Cruz to break the blockade, had safely ridden the storm which swept the gulf. After a night of anxiety the ships repaired their radio and communicated with the department.

The cruiser Tacoma, however, was reported a complete wreck on Bianquilla reef, off Vera Cruz, and all that remained of the vessel is reported to have sunk. A radio message received here from Adolfo De la Huerta, leader of the revolutionary forces, contained the information that the gunboats under his command performed daring work in assisting in the rescue of the remainder of the crew left on the Tacoma before she sank.

TROTSKY ISSUES DECREE

Calls on Red Army to Remain True to Lenin's Covenant.

Moscow, Jan. 23.—Leon Trotsky received the news of Lenin's death at his apartments in the Kremlin.

The order to the red army and navy, signed by Trotsky's assistant, Skliansky, calls upon all red soldiers and officers to stand guard with greater firmness and devotion over soviet power and remain true to Lenin's covenant.

Moscow's communist organizations passed resolutions demanding that the central committee exert all power to end the controversy within the party, declaring that strife is ruinous to the party and to soviet power. The resolutions express the readiness of the rank and file to immediately respond to the call to defend the soviet. Perfect order reigns everywhere.

Inland Waterways Planned.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Creation of an inland waterways corporation and an appropriation of $2,000,000 for the completion of six principal inland water routes is provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Brookhart of Iowa. Under the terms of the bill, the work would be completed within five years, in accordance with plans approved by the chief of engineers of the army.

Gold Bank For Germany.

Paris, Jan. 23.—The committee of experts, headed by General Charles G. Dawes, after questioning Herr Schaicht, director of the reichsbank, regarding Germany's finances, decided the fiscal rehabilitation of Germany necessitates creation of an independent gold bank. This they proposed to establish partly with foreign capital and partly with a free gold reserve and foreign currency. This bank is to be one of the first steps in the committee's efforts to stabilize Germany's currency.

Cincinnati, Jan. 23.—Leon Miller, 16, of Dayton, charged by his uncle, Nathaniel Miller, this city, with having caused the fatal scalding of Nathaniel's son while giving him a bath, was freed at the plaintiff's request.

BOK'S OFFER DECLINED

Notes Exchanged Between Senator Moses and Donor of Peace Award.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Edward W. Bok, donor of the peace award, retraced his steps in a letter to Senator Moses, chairman of the senate committee of inquiry, in which he maintained that "ordinary good taste" was his reason for declining to answer certain questions asked him by the committee. Mr. Bok added that Cornelius Bliss, Jr., and the Girard Trust company of Philadelphia were custodians of the peace award funds, and could supply the information he declined to furnish.

Replying, Senator Moses wrote Mr. Bok as follows:

"It is to be regretted that you did not see fit, at the outset, to base your refusal to answer what the committee unanimously regarded as entirely proper questions upon the ground of 'ordinary good taste,' and refer us to Mr. Bliss or the Girard Trust company, instead of attempting to set yourself up as a privileged class of one to whom a special rule applies, as your answers to Senator Green and Senator Reed would indicate."

Mr. Bok's offer to turn the $22,164 plans over to the committee and offer another $100,000 prize to the winner selected by the committee or some group selected by it, was characterized by Senator Moses as "wholly beside the mark." The senator wrote in reply: "If the committee wishes to have these documents, it has the power of subpoena to procure them."

Liquor Plot Alleged.

Cleveland, Jan. 23.—Three men, alleged to have been implicated in a big liquor plot, are under arrest here and others are sought. WAYS OF YOUTH

By ELAINE N. LE CLAIRE

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

FROM the darkest corner of the porch there drifted in through the living room window a subdued murmur of voices. Mr. Travers had been vaguely aware of the soothing murmur when he had entered the room at a quarter past eight; now, at 10:30, it had lost whatever soothing aspect it had once possessed.

"That doesn't sound like Bill Stentson's growl," he commented, without looking up from his paper.

"It isn't," his wife returned, briefly and wearily, "it's a new one."

"What?" The chair which had been tipped back against the wall descended to the floor.

"No, it isn't. Do be still, Archie, or they'll hear you."

"Who'll hear me?"

"Why, Carrie and Gus."

"That's what I want to know—Gus who?"

"Emmons, I think," she said. "Really Archie, I only met him for a minute. He's a real nice looking young man."

"Emmons, Emmons—I don't remember anyone in town by that name."

"I thought I told you that he was from out of town."

"Well, you didn't. Where'd she pick him up?"

"Now, be sensible. She met him at a dance, and he asked permission to call, and he's doing it."

"And taking a blamed long time about it, too." He pulled out his watch. "Do you know that it is nearly eleven o'clock? Does that daughter of mine know it? Does that fool fellow know it?"

"Yes, pa, we know it." There came a musical laugh from the porch. "Don't let us keep you up. If you—" but the closing of the window informed the youthful Carrie that further attempt at conversation with her parent would prove futile.

"It isn't a question of keeping me up one night in the week; it's a question of keeping me awake every night in the week; it's a question of health."

Mr. Travers, halfway up the stairs, turned to glare down at his wife. "It's been six weeks now since that girl got home from school, and there hasn't been a single night that I could call this house my own."

"There, there! You run along to bed. I'll lock all but the side door and be up in a jiffy."

The clock had struck twelve long before Mrs. Travers heard the key grate in the lock of the side door. She heard her daughter come upstairs and move noisily about her room, singing to herself. Momentarily Mr. Travers became wide awake. "And I'd just got that Bill trained so's he knew enough to go home. What's she done with him, anyway?" he demanded, suspiciously.

"Well, I don't suppose that she's murdered him; it's more likely that you have driven him away with your everlasting fussing."

It was not until the next evening at the supper table that Mr. Travers encountered his daughter. "Your mother and I were thinking of going to the movies this evening; want to go?"

Carrie, in her amazement, forgot to eat, and stared open mouthed at a parent who would suggest such a thing. "Catch me. I'm funny like that!" she at last jeered, derisively.

"When a girl gets to where she'd rather sit in the dark than accompany her parents! When your mother and I were your age—" There was much more, but Carrie did not hear it, for she was mentally composing a letter to the lately favored Bill.

Mrs. Travers grew uneasy as eight o'clock and Gus arrived simultaneously. She felt that something must be done. "We might go to the movies, after all," she ventured tentatively.

"We might, but we aren't." There was silence except for the continuous murmur without.

"Pa," suddenly came the voice of Carrie. "Pa, come here." Pa went. Mrs. Travers, listening anxiously and attentively, could not distinguish a word of the ensuing conversation.

"Pa," Carrie was saying, "I want you to meet Gus Emmons. He's heard a lot about you and he's crazy to meet you."

"Yes, sir," Gus broke in, before Mr. Travers could find words which he considered suitable to the occasion. "I've often heard granddad speak of Arch Travers."

Pa fairly beamed. "That's what I was always called. What's your grandfather's name?"

"Charles Townsend, sir. My mother was Fanny Townsend before her marriage."

Fanny Townsend, a slender elf in blue and brown, a porch dim in the April twilight, the wistful fragrance of lilac—in a flash all these came back to pa, and again he was twenty-one; but only for a moment. Fannie had been his second serious affair and he considered that he had, upon that occasion, conducted himself in such a manner that the family might yet be regretting his failure to enter into it.

He pictured Fanny with a husband who drank, or who couldn't support her, returning to live at her father's home, and ever after faced with the rebuke, "If you had married Arch everything would be different."

"And what does your granddad have to say of me?" he asked with ill-concealed curiosity.

"Well," Gus hesitated a minute. "Well, he says that he used to have to put you out every night more regularly than the cat."

The Belfry Tower.

Even in the Middle ages England was the "Ringing Isle," and the love of bell music has endured amongst us to this day. Indeed, there are more bells in this country than in any other, and nowhere else is the athletic exercise of change-ringing anything like as popular. Not so very long ago our church belfries were regarded as outside the parson's jurisdiction; they were often the scene of drunken and disorderly frolics, which were thought to be justified by such bell inscriptions as the oft-quoted couplet: "Hark, do ye hear? Our clappers want beer."—London Morning Post.

The beak of the eagle is nearly straight for some distance from the base and then suddenly turns downwards into a sharp hook.

Bad Habits in Canaries.
When a canary bird plucks feathers from the young birds, place them in a small nursery cage suspended from the side of the breeding cage in a manner that will allow feeding between the wires, as the young birds should not be removed entirely from their parents until they are able to crack the food upon which they must feed.

Hotel Stenographer
BY ROE FULKERSON

"Men are fools, Kelly," announced the Hotel Stenographer. "Me?" asked the House Detective. "Well, not you in particular," modified the girl, "but I said it sort of all inclusive like King Solomon. Solomon remarked: 'I said in my haste all men are liars,' but if he had been reasonably good looking young girl he might have thought over it for a week, and said the same thing in his leisure."

"A college guy came to brighten my young life last night. He sat on my parlor sofa all evening telling me the things he learned in college, which he thought I didn't know."

"No woman wants any nice looking young man to educate her, except on one subject and the chances are six to nothing at all that she knows more about that when she was 12 than he will know when he is 80."

"This guy talked to me about differential calculus and I looking at him with my azure eyes. He told me about the progress of civilization with my shoulder leaning against his, and he didn't seem to know it. He told me of the beauty of the sunset at Capri, and there I was looking at him right in the face."

"If he had just spent a little time telling me what the mirror in my vanity case tells me every time I powder my nose, he would have had a chance to come back and spend another evening with me. But the end of my sofa on which he sat, has a 'T'-let sign on it this morning. That bird will roost there no more."

"It's bad enough to have to associate with educated people because they never have any money but to have to listen to 'em strut their stuff is carrying it a bit too far. There seems to be the same lack of affinity between education and brains that there is between oil and water or women and a secret, Kelly. Maybe it's because people with brains don't need education, tho."

Origin of "Carpetbagger."
"Carpetbagger" was the description originally applied to a needy political adventurer who wandered over the country pandering to the prejudices of the ignorant in order to try to get into office. He was so called because he was regarded as having only enough property to fill a carpet bag.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

William F. Anderson, trustee, has filed a suit in the court of common pleas against William A. Fleming, executor of the estate of Mary E. Fleming, Barbara Short and Barbara Short executors of the estate of Cary Short. The suit is for money and foreclosure of a mortgage.

On June 7, 1899, Mary E. Fleming executed a promissory note to George Bennett and others for $13,725.67 and the plaintiff was made trustee.

November 9, 1908, plaintiff, as trustee, loaned $13,725.67 to Mary E. Fleming, as principal, and W. A. Fleming, as surety, and they executed the note which suit is brought, and gave a mortgage on a farm of 333 acres of land in Wayne township. There is now on said note $17,779.21. Mrs. Fleming is deceased and W. Fleming was appointed executor of her estate. He has a dower interest in the estate.

Barbara Short, as executor of Cary Short's estate, claims some interest by virtue of the provisions of the will of Mary E. Fleming and in order to protect their interests they are ordered to set up and prove the nature of their respective claims.

The plaintiff asks that the mortgage be foreclosed and said premises be sold and that out of the proceeds the sum of $17,779.21 with interest at six per cent from January 21, 1924, be paid.

Robinson & Hoops, of Marysville, represent the plaintiff and Meeker Terwilliger, of this city, and John Phillips, of Chillicothe, the defendant.

DEFEATED BY FEDERALS

Rebel Army Under Estrada Breaks Into Small Bands.

Tampico, Mexico, Jan. 23.—Although the rebel warship Zaragoza still rides outside the port, the arrival of the American cruiser Richmond has forced an abrogation of the rebel blockade, so far as ships flying the American flag is concerned. Several tankers entered the harbor immediately following the arrival of the Richmond. Unofficial information was given out that De la Huerta has proposed postponement of the blockade until midnight of Jan. 31.

Word was received here that following the defeat of the rebel forces on the outskirts of Guadalajara by federal troops under the personal command of President Obregon, the rebel army under General Estrada has broken into small bands. Federals are concentrating on Victoria from Nuevo Laredo, Piedras Negras and Matamoros. Rail communications with Monterey and Mexico City are still cut off.

English Rail Strike.
London, Jan. 23.—With the railway managers announcing improved train service and the strike leader, Bromley, declaring his gratification at the "reported spreading of the strike," the outstanding incident of the day's developments was the refusal of the managers to reopen negotiations, as suggested by Bromley in a letter. The Great Western railway announced that 50 per cent of the engineers and firemen on their lines are now working, but, according to Bromley's figures 75,000 out of a total of 83,000 locomotive men are out.

Traction Car Turns Over.
Akron, O., Jan. 23.—Fifteen persons were injured, several seriously, when a Northern Ohio traction car turned over on a double reverse curve here. The motorman and conductor were among those injured. All the victims are in local hospitals. Mrs. Frank Foster, 60, was the most seriously injured. Her condition is critical.

Eucalyptus Trees.
The grand eucalyptus trees in Gippsland are probably the grandest of their kind in the world, and quite as magnificent as the Californian giants, only not so large in circumference. The shedding of their bark is a misstatement. What the tree does do is this: It sheds the old, dry, broken, and coarse bark, but the new one is sound and solid, and is not shed. The new bark is clean and very smooth, no branches growing for 100 feet or more.

DEATH CALLS
CADDY MILLER

Passed Away at His Home on West High Street in Seventy-Ninth Year

Had Been in Business in Circleville Perhaps Longer Than Any Other Individual—Was Noted for His Honestly and Square Dealing.

William W. Miller, better known as "Caddy" Miller, died at his home on West High street, this city, this morning at 2 o'clock following a six week's illness of heart trouble.

He was born in Walnut township, this county, November 12, 1845, and was the son of John and Caroline Angel Miller. He was left motherless in infancy and was reared on a farm and later moved with his father to this city and attended public school. After finishing his course at school, he was taken into partnership with his father who was a hatter and furnisher. Following the death of his father he dropped the manufacture of hats and applied himself to the gent's furnishing business and also dealt in raw furs and from his business amassed a comfortable competence.

In 1876 Mr. Miller married Mrs. Rebecca Lee Daugherty, who died a number of years ago. He was a member of St. Philip's Episcopal church and socially was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

Mr. Miller was in business nearly fifty-eight years. In the past few years he had not been so active. His business being looked after carefully by his able assistants, Alvin E. Fissell and Fred Howard.

He was scrupulously honest and by his system of square dealing won the confidence and respect of all with whom he came in contact. He abhorred debt and insisted always on paying an obligation as soon as it was created.

In the autumn of his life, Mr. Miller was free from business cares and his last days were spent in ease and contentment. He felt that his interests at the store were guarded as carefully and efficiently as he himself could do, even in his younger days. "Kitty" Fissell was in Mr. Miller's employ for more than forty years, accepting employment there first as errand boy when he was just a little shaver, then as clerk and later to him was entrusted the entire management, including the buying and selling of stock and furs. "Kitty" grew up in the store, was industrious, faithful and honest and enjoyed to the fullest extent the confidence and esteem of his employer. Mr. Miller felt quite free to follow his own inclinations and only went to his place of business when that best pleased him.

He maintained his own home, but took his meals with Mr. and Mrs. William Kuhns, of West High street, where he was treated as one of the family. He was most strongly attached to their little daughter, Veronica, and spent many happy hours with her at the picture shows or in taking walks.

The funeral services will be held at the Episcopal church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. David McDonald, of Lancaster, and Rev. Lee Baird, of this city, will officiate. Interment will be in Forest cemetery.

Ethics and Epigram.
"There's nothing holier in heaven than your own little job," and "The man who fills his little niche on earth in the very best way that it can be filled, is as good as any angel in heaven," are two sayings which sound like different versions of the same epigram of Rev. Robert J. MacAlpine in his address to the Kiwanis club. Whether Pastor MacAlpine said both these things, or only one of them, he put a grand truth in a crisp form. Honest, efficient work is not only a worldly utility but a high moral function.

Filbert Worth Cultivating.
A nut almost unknown in the United States is the filbert, one of the most delicious of all nuts. It is cultivated on a large scale for the market in the county of Kent, England. A larger variety is known as the "cob nut." The filbert is as superior to the hazel nut—as the hazel nut is superior to the peanut. Attempts to raise the filbert on a commercial scale in the United States have not so far met with success.

St. John's Writings.
There is satisfactory evidence that St. John, the beloved brother of James and son of Zebedee, was the author of the Gospel, Epistles and Revelations ascribed to him. The Revelations were written during his exile on the island of Patmos; the Gospel and Epistles after his return under amnesty to Ephesus, where he was superior of the churches.

LOWER ANIMALS AT BIRTH

Seem to the Observer to Be Strange Little Objects—Baby Giraffe Not Long Helpless.

Recently one of the tortoises at a large city zoo laid 42 eggs and hatched out the first tortoise to be born in the "Zoo." At birth he was two inches long and weighed a little over an ounce. His mother was fifty years old when he was hatched out.

Young animals are always very strange little things when first seen. The porcupine is born with its spines, but they are quite soft and pliable. They soon harden when exposed to the air. The puma is born spotted, and has rings on his tail. At six months old his coat becomes tawny in color and his tail loses all its rings.

The tapir is born with curious markings of spots and streaks on his coat. But when he is four months old these all disappear.

Some of the young animals have a pretty good time. The woolly opossum of South America gives her youngster any amount of joy rides, and she will climb trees quite nimbly with as many as twelve of her children clinging tenaciously to her. The young black-necked swan from the same country often gets a ride in his mother's mouth.

The giraffe is one of the nimblest animals, even when very tiny. He disdains any carrying on his mother's part, and when he is only three days old will trot gaily along by his mother's side.

BEARDS ONCE HIGHLY PRIZED

To Be Without One Was Considered Sign of Effeminacy in Civilization's Early Stage.

Back in the early stages of civilization the clean-shaven man of today. Instead of giving the impression of power and strength, would have been looked upon as a very effeminate person, an outcast in worth-while society.

All nations in their early development cherished the beard as something almost sacred, a sign of strength and manhood. To lose the beard through an accident or as punishment was as degrading a thing as could befall a man. Tradition has connected wisdom with a long beard; artists have embodied it in their pictures. Most of the Biblical characters, even the first person of the Trinity, is given a beard by old painters and carvers.

The oath of the beard is as old as history. It is found in the first English political ballad when Sir Simon De Montfort swears "by the hair on his chin."

Large Supply Needed.

Eph Brown was a true believer and fond of any religious ceremony. When "de suction" caught him, he became a sort of unofficial chaplain in a colored labor battalion. He worked assiduously among his fellows, and finally persuaded a dozen or so to join him in an open-air baptizing on a day in January.

That it was necessary to chop a hole in the river ice to provide a space for immersion rather cooled the ardor of the converts, but not so Eph's. Seizing the nearest soldier, he plunged him beneath the icy water. He had not reckoned the swift current, however, and the luckless victim was snatched out of his hands and carried permanently out of sight.

Eph was not in the least disconcerted. "De Lawd giveth!" he intoned, "an' de Lawd taketh away. Bring me another privit."—American Legion Weekly.

Plant a Tree.

Every year we cut in the United States wood enough to measure 26,000,000,000 cubic feet of lumber. Each year we cut over 10,000,000 acres of land. At that rate the last of our merchantable lumber will have been exhausted in between 30 and 40 years. Even now we are approaching the forest bankruptcy. We all know the disasters that follow in the path of such a state of affairs. Trees do not mature in a day. The fact that a timber crop is so long in getting here discourages many from doing their share in the work of reforestation. If the land owner will look but a short distance ahead, he will learn that in planting trees he can turn much waste land into a source of profit and at the same time he will be performing a duty to this country and the human race.—Exchange.

First American-Made Steel.

The first steel produced in the United States, according to the geological survey, Department of the Interior, was probably made in Connecticut in 1728, by Samuel Higley and Joseph Dewey. Crucible steel was first successfully produced in the United States in 1832 at the works of William and John H. Garrard at Cincinnati. Bessemer steel was first made in this country in September, 1864, by William F. Durfee, at an experimental plant at Wyandotte, Mich., and open-hearth steel in 1864 by the New Jersey Steel and Iron company, at Trenton.

Knew What Was Coming.

The spendthrift son was leading hopefully up to his usual request. "Yes, you know, father," he observed, "I'm getting along jolly well lately. Why, I was even introduced to Jorjington the other day. He's the leading man in the whole of our business. I—"

"And have you paid him back yet?" inquired his impossible parent.—Stray Stories.

AMUSEMENTS

An excellent cast of well known players will appear in support of Douglas MacLean in "Going Up" his initial Associated Exhibitors picture which opens at the Met theater for a three day run beginning today.

Mr. MacLean portrays the role of Robert Street, a young author who, very much against his will, is forced to fly a highpowered airplane in a race against a daring French ace. Marjorie Daw is the girl in the case. Francis McDonald, as Jules Gaillard, a famous French flier in real life as well as in "reel" circles, is the rival for the young lady's affections. Hal-lam Cooley is said to give the best characterization of his career as Hopkinson Brown, Street's bosom friend, whose glib tongue gets the young author into so many embarrassing and humorous situations. Hughie Mack, one of the screen's best known heavyweight comedians, appears as Sam Robinson, an aviation instructor with an aversion to getting off the ground. John Steppling, Arthur Stuart Hull, Wade Boteler, Lillian Langdon and Mervyn LeRoy complete the cast.

Origin of "Pitched Battle."
"A pitched battle" originated in the days of knight-errantry and was so called then because boiling pitch was used by the defenders of a feudal castle to repel the attacking force. The battles, which usually took place outside the castle walls, would soon end when the boiling pitch began to flow from a tank on top of the walls. This originated the term "a pitched battle."

The Black-Cap.
The black-cap, one of the songsters of England, sings a sweet, full, clear but short strain, and expresses a great variety of tones, surpassed only by the nightingale. Black-caps are most frequently found in orchards and gardens.

AUTO BURNS.

The fire department was called out Tuesday evening to the Schear's garage where the automobile of Robert Liston was in flames. The machine was damaged to the amount of $250.

Fire was caused by placing too much alcohol in the radiator which did not percolate thru the engine when it was started. The car was not insured.

An alarm of fire was turned in from box 42 Scioto and High streets at 10:25 o'clock this morning. The fire was located in a gas pipe on the lot of the late Caddy Miller. There was no loss.

Old Pennsylvania City.

York, Pa., is a city of ancient origin. Here was located the first settlement west of the Susquehanna river. From September 30, 1777, to June 27, 1778, she was the nation's capital, for during that time, the British then occupying Philadelphia, the continental congress met in her courthouse. The first money sent by the king of France to aid the cause of American independence was received by congress in this city. And here the first national Thanksgiving proclamation was issued.

Steam Never Visible.
Actual steam is not visible. The visible white vapor which is frequently referred to as steam is in reality a collection of fine moisture particles which are formed by the condensation of true steam.

Or Should Be.
The value of experience is estimated in sense rather than in dollars.—Boston Transcript.

Indian Mound, Kansas City.
The Indian mound in the northeast part of Kansas city was built about 57,000 years ago, according to Edward part of Kansas City was built about who has made an exhaustive study of prehistoric mounds in the United States. This mound is one mile north of Sheffield on the high bluff overlooking the Missouri river and the valley of the Blue river. It is called Indian mound. It probably was a signal mound.

"Scapa Flow."
In Scotch the word scapa means "head" and flow means "sea." Scapa flow is the portion of the sea in the southern part of the Orkney islands which extends from Pomona to the Pentland firth. It is fifteen miles long and about eight miles wide, and opens by Hoy sound in the northwest joining Pentland firth in the south near the island of Swona. The term scapa may perhaps be traced to the Gaelic sgapadh, to scatter, spread.

Drake Bitter Enemy of Spain.
In the days of her grandeur Spain had no bitterer enemy than Sir Francis Drake, the fearless sea rover who, through his exploits, became one of the most famous of Queen Elizabeth's admirals. Drake was the first sailor of his nation to circumnavigate the globe—a feat that Magellan and Sebastian del Cano had accomplished 58 years before. Such was his hatred of the Spanish that he was wont to say: "Whether there be peace or war between Spain and England, there will always be war between Drake and the supporters of the Inquisition." Drake never forgave the defeat that he experienced at the hands of the Spaniards at San-Juan-de-Ulloa in 1568, when he was the youthful captain of the Judith, a defeat that involved the loss of all that he possessed.

Rotten Luck.
Jack—"You say you fell from a ladder and were painfully injured? Why don't you file a claim on your insurance company?" Clarence—"I would, but you see it wasn't exactly an accident. I was planning to elope with Mabel and I mistook her father's room for hers."

How to Rewind a Curtain Spring.
Do you know that when the spring in the window shade is loosened, all you have to do is to pull the shade down its entire length, take it out of the fixtures, roll it up smoothly, put it back in the fixtures, and it will have its original spring? How many wire hairpins have you twisted trying to rewind a curtain spring?

First Sleeping Car.
A sleeping car was put into service on the Cumberland Valley railroad (now a part of the Pennsylvania railroad system) in 1836 or 1837, but was abandoned in 1848.

HAT CLEANING PLACE.

Get our your Soft or Stiff Hat and let us clean and reblock it. Our system excels. Satisfaction guaranteed. Our price is right. Don't wait! Bring yours in before the rush. Also first class shine for ladies and gentlemen.

To Clean Brass Articles.
Do not throw away squeezed lemons; use them for cleaning brasses and dish covers. Put a pinch of white on the article to be cleaned, and rub it in well, using the lemon as a sponge. You will be surprised to see how much dirt you can remove in a very short time and with little trouble. Brasses cleaned in this way keep clean longer than when done with ordinary polish.

MONOXIDE GAS CAUSED DEATH

Ellsworth Smith Overcome in Car-age at His Home in Columbus.

Body Was Found by His Wife Tuesday
Morning—Failure to Open Doors for Ventilation Resulted in Loss of Life—
Formerly Employed in This City.

Ellsworth Smith, formerly of this city, was asphyxiated Monday night by carbon monoxide gas fumes in his garage in the rear of his home, 388 Hanford street, Columbus, while fixing the machine to prevent it from freezing.

Mr. Smith had eaten his supper Monday evening about 6 o'clock and told his wife he was going to the garage to fill the radiator with alcohol and to repair some engine trouble. About 10:30 o'clock his wife went to the garage and talked with him and he said that he would be thru with his work in a few minutes and she returned to the house and retired.

Tuesday morning she discovered that her husband had not come in and going out to the garage she found him in a sitting position in the car, the hood of the engine raised, the lights of the garage still burning and the garage doors closed.

The police believe that Smith's failure to open the doors and permit ventilation of the garage caused his death. Their theory is that he was running the engine, and that the fumes caught him before he could arise from his seat. The gasoline tank was dry, indicating that the engine ran until the gas supply was exhausted.

The deceased was employed as an insurance adjuster. He was thirty-five years of age and leaves besides his wife, one sister, Mrs. J. J. Jennings of Cincinnati and two brothers, W. A. Smith, of Gallipolis and Harley Smith of this city.

He was a son of Marion Smith, who formerly resided in this city. He had an aunt, Mrs. Jadwin, living on West High street, this city.

At one time he worked in the barber shop of Frank L. Howard.

Says Sam: I reckon it's just the irony of fate that the farmers leisure days are the shortest in the year.

Early frosts last fall and zero weather this winter have made Ohio's prospects for an adequate supply of seed corn poorer than in any other year since 1918, when thousands of bushels had to be imported from other states. Have you tested yours?

Cooperation, like charity, must begin at home if it is to be permanently effective.

Twenty-five Ohioans in 14 counties have entered the new state contest to grow 400 bushels of wheat on ten acres. That is more than twice the state average.

Men's prosperity is in their own hands and no form of government is of the least use.—Ruskin.

Most scrub cows don't seem to appreciate the law of compensation; it doesn't take half the time to milk them that it does to feed them.

The eyes are of little use if the mind be blind.—Proverbs of Arabia.
